Disability is more common than you think.

As long as you have the ability to earn an income, you are able to accumulate assets and provide for yourself and your family. But what would happen if you became disabled and could no longer work?

The odds of becoming disabled are compelling. Consider these statistics:

- More than 10% of Americans between the ages of 18 and 64 have a disability.¹
- Nearly 90% of disabilities aren't work related and, therefore, don't qualify for work-comp benefits.²
- 100 million Americans are not protected by private disability insurance.³

Owning a disability income insurance policy should be a necessity, like other insurance you have to protect other assets. For instance, you insure your home, car, and possessions — don't neglect to protect the income that pays for them.

Disability insurance can help ensure that money will continue to come in the door to help pay your bills if a sickness or injury prevents you from performing the material and substantial duties of your regular occupation.

Contact your local Federated representative to discuss ways Federated can help you address the catastrophic impact of a disability as part of your overall insurance program.

Eye Safety Tips – by Bud Price

If you were asked to name your most valuable possessions, would you include your eyes? Many people would list homes or cars. But those things can be replaced if they're damaged or lost, your eyes can't be.

Take a look at these eye safety tips to see if you're doing the right things to protect your eyes on the job:

- * Know the common causes of eye injuries, such as flying particles; chemical splashes; dust; swinging or protruding objects; fumes, mists, gases, and vapors; electrical arcing and sparks; and radiant energy from welding, cutting or brazing.
- * Use proper eye protection based on the hazards you may face on the job.
- * Inspect eye protection before each use and replace damaged equipment.
- * Follow required work procedures designed to prevent injuries.
- * Don't wear metal-framed eyewear around live electricity.
- * Don't wear contact lenses in high dust areas.
- * Know proper first aid for eye injuries.
- * Clean eye protection after use. Disinfect if exposed to chemicals.
- * Store your eye protection in a safe place where it won't get damaged.

Here are some of the reasons:

Complacency. No matter how many times you've done a job, if you take your safety for granted, you can get hurt.

Inadequate information. If you don't know what to do or how to do it, there's a good chance you'll do it wrong. So, listen to job instructions. Read equipment manuals, container labels, and safety data sheets. And if you're not sure about something, ask!

Poorly maintained tools or equipment. Don't use unsafe tools or equipment. Report them and get a replacement.

Be Aware. Not looking where you're going or not paying attention to what you're doing. To always be safe on the job you have to be constantly alert. You need to keep looking for hazards and anticipating anything that could go wrong.

Not taking hazards seriously enough. All work hazards can hurt you in some way. Even a minor injury can interfere with your work and your life—and cause you a lot of pain.

Fooling around. Protecting your safety is serious. There's no room for horseplay.

Carelessness. Just like not keeping your eyes and mind on the road can lead to a traffic accident, not keeping your eyes and mind on the job can lead to a work accident. So always avoid distractions.

Fatigue. If you come to work tired, your chances of being involved in an accident or being injured increase. So get enough sleep before each workday.

BASIC FIRST-AID STEPS

If someone gets hurt:

Check to see if the victim is breathing
Call for medical help immediately - Explain the kind of injury and where the victim is - Be calm and act fast
Bring help to the victim, not the victim to the help
Don't move an injured person unless it's necessary to save his or her life
Know where first-aid kits are available
Keep the victim calm and comfortable if you're not sure what else to do, and wait for the professional help
